

Does the Safety, Efficacy, and Quality of Natural Health Products Matter to YOU?

NHP Publications is an innovative, scholarly publisher of the Journal of Natural Health Product Research, providing scientists and researchers with a vested interest in advancing knowledge surrounding natural health products (NHPs) with a central resource to publish their findings. In other words, our mission is to publish the research that hold the answers to your questions and concerns about vitamins, minerals, herbal remedies, traditional medicines and more.

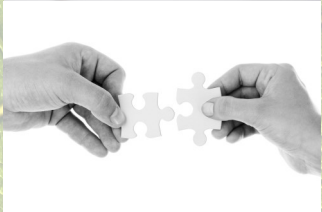

Your Financial Support Benefits...

Scientists & Researchers: Provides NHP researchers with a central resource to publish their findings, reduced publication fees while still allowing their article to be freely available to anyone, and the opportunity to apply for grants to fund their research.

Healthcare Providers: Provides healthcare providers with the most current research being conducted on NHPs, a field of therapies that 1) patients commonly express interest in using and ask about, and 2) are largely not taught in healthcare education.

YOU: Provides you, your family, and your friends, with a larger, evidenced-informed body of research that will generate the answers we deserve to receive to the questions we have about NHP safety, efficacy and quality.
